Veteran broker's $14M UWS unit on market

March 04, 2010 08:40AM

Agnes Nolan, the veteran luxury real estate broker who once ran brokerage Whitbred-Nolan, has listed her own slice of high-end New York real estate for $13.9 million. Nolan, who employed Elizabeth Stribling for 14 years before she broke off to start Stribling & Associates 30 years ago, has lived in the penthouse duplex at 271 Central Park West since 1964. The five-bedroom, five-and-a-half-bathroom home contains 4,000 square feet, a wraparound terrace and views of Central Park. Powerbroker Dolly Lenz of Prudential Douglas Elliman has the listing.
